Re: C-State Reference

About two years ago Catalyst Healthcare Ltd. began to the ability of their primary software contractor. At this time we started pushing out some of the smaller projects to contractors to take the load off of our primary contractor and our internal programming staff. This led us to contract with C-State to do a small software development related project on one of our applications. C-State's ability to get this job done quickly while maintaining a high level of product quality has led us to contract several additional projects since then. Of the projects that have done on our behalf, at least two of them would be considered quite large projects and they worked with us from design to final QA. At this time we have several additional projects underway at C-State one of which is set to be our flagship product offering. In fact, at this point C-State does the vast majority of our entire software development portfolio and is involved at some level with virtually all of our projects.

In our experience working with C-State we have seen that they have an extremely well educated staff. Not only are they able to write the actual application code they are also very good at understanding the business level problems and suggesting or architecting solutions to those issues. They have utilized many leading edge technologies in order to give us a technological edge over our competition and are not limited to just one area of development expertise. This has proven to be very beneficial as our product offerings have matured.

Overall we have been extremely happy with C-State. Based on their performance they have become our primary software development partner. We have recommended their services to several other companies and I have no reservation in giving C-State my highest recommendation as a software development contractor. They consistently exceed our expectations.

Sincerely,
